"Provision will be made for the registration by mail of any person who expects to be absent on registration day from the jurisdiction of the board where he permanently resides," says the statement, "but in such case extreme care should be taken by him to see that his registration card reaches his home board on or before August 24. Such persons are advised to apply at once to a local board for instruction as to how to proceed."

TELL THE TOWN FOLK CONNELLSVILLE BOYS ARE AT THE FRONT WITH BELLS ON JUST AS THOUGH AT A BALL GAME—LIEUT. DOUGLAS

"Connellsville boys are at the front with bells on just as though they were at a ball game," is another of the many evidences that their behavior during the terrific fighting on the Marne was such that we may well be proud to claim them as our own. Newspaper correspondents with the Army have reported multiplying instances of conspicuous bravery by individual soldiers and the chief of staff has added his official testimony of the valour and courage of the boys from the old Keystone state. Now comes a closer range view to the readers of The Courier furnished by a letter Lieut. E. W. Douglas, of the Medical Corps, has written to Rev. J. L. Proudfit, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Describing with a wealth of interesting detail his journey from Detroit by automobile to a port of embarkation; his experience aboard a ship that was "an easy riding one in smooth water," thence by rail across the British Isles "on railroads that have not outgrown their infancy," Lieutenant Douglas gives a glimpse of life in rural France, then says:

"Let me say that we have given account of ourselves that has puzzled the Kaiseranmeans who spoke disparingly of our Army. I will never see nor hear daring, colossal nerve and heroism, determination and self-sacrifice for an ideal equal to that our boys have displayed. No matter what their injury, so long as they can utter a word nothing is spoken save but indifferent reference to the wound, along with a request to have their hurts dressed immediately that they may return to their duty at the front.

"I would never have thought the human body capable of such endurance. With boys so keen to do what they have resolved in their minds is the right thing, who can stand against us, and who can hope to overcome our principles? Surely not the Hun, although more savage than the lowest brute.

"While I cannot state happenings here at this time, I know it will pass uncensored when I tell you to believe all the stories you read of German atrocities. But do you think such practices will attain their purpose when applied to such enlightened people as ourselves and Allies? If resort were had by us to identical means, the Hun would be immediately stampeded. Regardless of the cost, unless his outrages become too unbearable, retaliation will not be considered; we will not place ourselves on his level; we will not become a rattlesnake because he is one. We do not respond to his terrors; our warfare is sane and civilized.

"You may tell the town folk that Connellsville boys are at the front with bells on just as though they were at a ball game. 'Monty' Dilworth and Percy Sheetz act like old veterans under shell fire; one would think snowballs or cabbages were flying through the air so little concern do they show over the flying, screaming death about them. Both looked well and told me with genuine pleasure of reading The Courier which they would have gone and procured for me had I not objected to the useless exposure. Fine, brave fellows!"

The letter was dated July 21.

CONNELLSVILLE BOY SWIMS RIVER UNDER GUN FIRE

Private James E. Harden Has Close Call in Fismette Battle.

IS OUT HUNTING SNIPERS

Comes Unexpectedly Upon Dozen Boches With Machine Gun; They Train It on Him but He Gets Away; Other Deeds of Heroism Are Told.

Private James E. Harden, of Connellsville, had a narrow escape from death at the hand of the boches during the fighting around Fismette on the Vesle river on the Aisne-Marne front recently, according to a message received by the Courier from the headquarters of the American Army on the Vesle under the date of August 14. The message reads:

Private James E. Harden, of Connellsville, Pa., had a hair breath escape while hunting snipers in the woods south of the Vesle. He lost his rifle and all his equipment and, on reaching the bank of the river, decided to swim across.

"Emerged on the north bank he found himself almost in the midst of a dozen boches who were tinkering with a machine gun. They tried to turn it on him but he managed to swim back and hid in a shell hole for two days. Luckily he had on two shirts so he keep warm enough in the chilly hour of the early morning and finally managed to get back to his own lines in safety."

The same dispatch tells of the rescue of twenty-eight Americans who lay wounded in a cellar at Fismette, the little town across the Vesle from Fismes, the scene of exceedingly bitter fighting. In this the name of Major Fredrick Hartenz, of Pittsburg, and Major Edward Midland, of Corapolis, who rode an automobile to the place where the wounded lay, in the face of machine gun and artillery fire, are mentioned.

Efforts today to learn the identity of James Harden were unavailing.

Word to that effect was received here today on post cards written July 31, by Sergeant Durst to Francis J. Stadler and Harry Stafford. Each card bore a photograph of Durst and a comrade, also wounded. They were both attired in hospital garments and it can be plainly seen where each soldier was wounded.

"French", as he is better known among his any friends, has a wound of the left shoulder caused when he was struck by part of a shell. The other soldier, whose name is not mentioned by Sergeant Durst, has an injury near the right temple. Sergeant Durst is a son of Mrs. Rebecca Durst of this city.

TWO HURT WHEN AUTO HITS POLE NEAR WORK FARM

Miss Catherine Salleske of Greenwood, employed in A. J. Templeton's bake shop, was painfully injured last evening in an automobile accident near the Work farm on the Leisenring road. Other occupants of the car were Mrs. Templeton, her small daughter, Anna Mae, and her nephew, Junifer Templeton, and Clyde Detwiler, who was at the wheel.

The party was returning to Connellsville and just when they reached the Work hill another car was coming in the opposite direction. The driver of the car failing to use his dimmers, Detwiler, to avoid a collision, drove over to one side of the road and in doing so side-swiped a telegraph pole.

Miss Salleske is suffering from a painful wound around the right eye, caused by a splinter from the top of the car. She was removed to the Cottage State hospital, where an operation to close the laceration was necessary. Mrs. Templeton received a slight cut on the arm. Other occupants of the car escaped injury. The machine was badly damaged.

EFFORT TO BOOST RETAIL PRICES OF COAL FRUSTRATED

Report Comes to Administrator Barbour of Contemplated Raise.

HE SENDS OUT LETTER

Attention is Called to Government Ruling and Consumers Gouged Are Asked to Make Report, With Invoice, to the County Authorities.

Reported attempts of retail coal dealers to boost the price of fuel to consumers in Fayette county were frustrated today by an order issued by Fuel Administrator J. G. Barbour of Uniontown. The plan was to advance the price three cents a bushel, it was said. Mr. Barbour sent out the following letter:

"There seems to be some misunderstanding as to the price of coal sold at the mine and to correct the same I wish to state that the price for run of mine coal in Fayette county at present is nine and one-half cents a bushel, or if sold in larger quantities, the price should be $2.25 per ton. This is the price fixed by the government for coal in Fayette county except the thin vein around Ohiopyle.

"The maximum price for hauling has been fixed by the local committee at four and one-half cents a bushel. No operator should charge more and it is the duty of any one charged more to report the same to the fuel committee, sending a copy of the invoice so a record can be had and at the same time reported to the proper authorities.

"Please give this your attention and at the same time encourage local consumers to anticipate their wants and place orders for coal before fall."

It was contended that this bank, which was closed by the comptroller, having paid all its depositors in full there is no necessity for selling this stock.

HUN OFFENSIVE ABANDONED.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The withdrawal on the western front by the Germans in the past few days, it is believed here, indicates that the enemy intends to abandon the offensive. It is said to be doubtful whether he will be able to resume the offensive, since thirty-five divisions now are necessary between the Oise and the Ancre, of which fifteen are from the reserves. There are now only sixteen fresh enemy divisions in reserve on the entire Western front and only eleven of these belong to the army group of Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. It is said that the British are so close to Chaulnes that the enemy cannot use the town. Almost all the rail communications in the Peronne region have been rendered useless by the Allies.

BIPLANE CAPABLE OF REAL SERVICE NEAR COMPLETION IN SHOP IN CONNELLSVILLE

There is in building in Connellsville what is claimed to be a real serviceable two-seater tractor biplane. The machine is about ready for its trial flight, says the builder, Roy Windell of 401 Jefferson street. "There are some few difficulties in aeroplane construction in Connellsville," says Mr. Windell, "but we have here one that is not a toy."

The wings of the craft measure 36 feet from tip to tip, according to a description given to The Courier. The length over all, nose to tail, is 26 feet. The height is 10 feet. Empty the machine weighs 900 pounds. It is to be operated by a 50 horsepower motor and will have a speed range of 95 miles per hour and will be capable of remaining aloft for four hours.

Most of the materials entering into the construction of the machine were shipped from outside the city. Boyts, Porter & Company, Connellsville, made some of the delicate aluminum castings. There are, it is claimed, many new features about the plane which may be used on government machines for war use.

The plane is being constructed in a shop on Ogden street. The builder is being assisted by Walton Brownell of Pittsburg.

SOUTH SIDE RESIDENTS COMPLAIN OF NOISES BY ENGINES AS FUEL WASTE

South Side residents living between Pittsburg and Arch streets, near the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards, are complaining of the incessant noises made by engines. They assert that engines standing on the tracks at the foot of Green street are continually blowing whistles or exhausting steam and making other unnecessary noises.

A petition has been prepared and is being circulated through the district. It is stated it has been liberally signed. It will probably be presented to the Baltimore & Ohio officials.

It is reported that persons sitting in a porch in the vicinity of the yards were unable at recent date to hear each other talk for a period of 20 minutes.

In part the petition makes the claim that there is an unnecessary waste of fuel.

PLANS ALREADY MADE FOR REGISTERING MEN UNDER NEW DRAFT LAW

Number Estimated at 13,000,000 Out of Which 2,000,000 Will be Qualified for Full Military Service.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Provost Marshal General Crowder has announced that plans have been made for registering the 13,000,000 additional men which he estimates will be brought under the selective service law when Congress enacts the pending bill extending the age limits to include men between 18 and 45 years. From this number approximately 2,000,000 qualified for full military service are expected to be secured.

So urgent is the need for additional man-power, General Crowder said, that the draft machinery is being put into shape for the great task ahead without waiting for final action of Congress. Men of the new draft will be needed by October 1, and in order to get them registration day will have to be held not later than September 15, and, if poossible, September 5 will be fixed as the day.

When the 13,000,000 men are enrolled, nearly 25,000,000 will have been registered since the United States entered the war. There were some 10,000,000 enrolled on the first registration day, June 5, 1917; another 600,000 last June 5, and several hundred thousand more are expected August 24.

ROCKWOOD ALIEN JAILED

Werner Nowak, an alien enemy, whose parents have resided at Rockwood for the past year, was taken to Pittsburg by Deputy United States Marshal Thomas P. Campbell yesterday afternoon and placed in the Allegheny county jail on a charge of being a dangerous alien.

Nowak was born in Berlin, Germany, and had been in this country for nine years. He was employed as mine superintendent for the Edwina Coal company, whose mines are located at Blackfield. Suspicion was first attracted to Nowak by the citizens of Rockwood, who alleged that during a recent patriotic demonstration there Nowak tore an American flag from an automobile and declared "These Americans will be glad to kiss the kaiser's toe before the war is over. I am a German and will never take out naturalization papers." It is further alleged that he refused to take out Liberty Bonds and exhibited keen interest in newspaper reports at the time the Germans were making their last big drive towards Paris, showing unmistakable enthusiasm at the success of the Germans.

BRITISH PUSH ENEMY BACK AT MORLANCOURT.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—South of Albert the British have advanced their lines slightly in the region northeast of Morlancourt, says the official statement today from Field Marshal Haig. On the eastern bank of the Ancre local fighting took place last night on the outskirts of Thiepval woods.

JOY IN MURMAN WHEN BRITISH ARRIVE.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The population of the Murmansk region received with joy the British forces that landed there recently, according to an Allied diplomat who has arrived in London from Petrograd.

"I was in Murman when the British troops arrived," he said, "and am quite unable to describe the pleasure that the arrival caused. Old men and women wept with tears of joy, crying 'At last Russia will be saved.' The peasant, workmen and aristocracy know that Germany is their enemy.

"Never has the situation been so favorable as today for the presence of the Allies in Russia. Many men in Petrograd who held high positions in the old Russian army say their worst enemy is Germany. They have told me that they know that the only real friends of Russia are the Allies."

BUILD 130 MILES RAILROAD IN 100 DAYS.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(Avas Agency).—A railway more than 130 miles in length behind the French front has been built in less than 100 days and yesterday was opened for traffic. Its purpose is to improve the communication between the northern and southern parts of the northern railway system. The construction involved the building of two important bridges and a tunnel 375 yards in length.

CANADIANS CAPTURE VILLAGE OF PARVILLERS.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 16.—By Canadian Press).—The Canadians captured the village of Parvillers today in a smart operation which enabled them to straighten out their line in that sector of the front. A number of machine guns and prisoners were taken. The latest report was that our troops are holding the village. Reinforcements want there in support against the strong post the enemy had in the vicinity. Enemy artillery activity indicates a stiffening of resistance. Hostile aircraft has ben considerably strengthened on the whole of the Amiens-Montdidier front.

Some thirty-four enemy divisions have ben engaged, including eleven fresh divisions and two third divisions from the reserves. The enemy has used up every battalion of two of the four divisions holding his line in front of the Canadians.

NO CERTIFICATES OF PRIORITY NEEDED FOR MINE SUPPLIES

PRIORITY IS AUTOMATIC

Except on Supplies or Equipment for New Construction or Expansion of Plants, in Which Case Application Must Be Made According to Form.

The regulations governing the shipment of machinery, equipment and supplies for coal mines and coke works have been completed by the mine supply and equipment department of the production of the United States Fuel Administration, of which department Roy A. Rainey and David D. Bush are in charge. These regulations have been officially announced as follows:

"The mine supply and equipment department of the production of the United States Fuel Administration has been created to assist operators of coal mines to procure their supplies and equipment without unnecessary delay and in this way to prevent, in so far as possible, loss of production caused by storage of materials.

"Under new rulings of the priorities division of the War Industries Board, no priority certificates will be required to obtain the manufacture of supplies and equipment for the operation and maintenance of coke plants and mines. All such materials are automatically classed in A-6 and will be so treated by manufactures when an affidavit in the following form is made upon or attached to the order:

" 'Unless re-rated by express order in writing by the priorities committee of the War Industries Board, this order is by authority of said priorities committee rated as Class A-6—under and by virture of subdivision (p) of section 8 of circular No. 4, issued by the priorities division of the War Industries Board of date July 1, 1918, and all amendments thereto.

" 'For the purpose of securing the said rating I do solemnly swear—

" '(1) That I have taken and filed whatever pledge is required by the War Industries Board from the industry of which I am a member; and

" '(2) That the materials, equipment, or supplies covered by this order are intended for use, and will be used, for the purpose or purposes mentioned in the said subdivision of said section 8, and for no other purpose.'

"No pledge has been required from the coal industry by the War Industries Board. This automatic priority does not apply on supplies or equipment for new construction, expansion, or replacement for expansion. In cases where materials are needed for work of this kind, application must be made for priority certificates on the regular blanks of the priorities committe.

"Under this new ruling mine supplies and equipment are granted priority to an extent that makes them but little less important than material used in war work and under ordinary circumstances no higher priority will be granted them. In emergency case however, when application is made for a higher priority upon the regular blank of the War Industries Board, the priorities committee may, if the necessity is shown, and upon recommendation of the Fuel Administration, place an order for supplies or equipment in a class higher than A-6.

"Application for such higher classification must clearly show the existence of an emergency such, for instance, as the possible loss of a mine by flooding.

"These regulations apply only to the manufacture of materials. All matters connected with their transportation are handled by the United States Fuel Administration.

"It is the purpose of the mine supply and equipment department to present to the priorities committee or to the Railroad Administration cases where expedition of manufacture or transportation of supplies for coal mines is necessary in order to maintain production and to follow up all such cases until the best possible results have been obtained."

Since the issuance of the foregoing rules and regulations a supplement has been made effective which amends the original circular as follows:

"Section 1. Following subdivision (o) of Section 7 page 5, add:

"(p) For the operation and maintenance (not new construction, expansion or replacement) of coke oven plants, mines, smelters, furnaces, rolling mills, wire drawing mills, pipe and tube mills, employed in the production of fuels, metals and metal products, A-6.

"(r) For the manufacture of repair parts to shoe machinery and for the operation and maintenance (not new construction, expansion or replacement) of shoe manufacturing plants, B-2.

"(s) For the maintenance of jobbers' stocks of plates, sheets, bars, shapes, structural shapes, tubular products, wire and wire products, tin plate, heavy hardware, farm implements, mining tools, machinery and equipment, oil well supplies and similar products, upon the strict compliance with the conditions prescribed by Section 5 of the bulletin issued by the priorities commissioner and the director of steel supply, dated July 3, 1918 (P. C. form No. 18), and Section V of Circular No. 5 of the priorities division of the War Industries Board, dated July 22, 1918, B-4.

"(t) For the maintenance of stocks of fabricators of steel to be used in the construction of ships, buildings and bridges upon strict compliance with the conditions prescribed by Section 5 of the bulletin issued by the priorities commissioner and the director of steel supply, dated July 3, 1918 (P. C. form No. 18), and Section V of Circular No. 5 of the priorities division of the War Industries Board, dated July 22, 1918, B-4.

"Section 2. Section 5, pages 3 and 4, is so amended as to hereafter embrace within Class C, under the conditions set out in Section 9, each order for materials, equipment or supplies for the additional purposes or uses following:

"(a) For the maintenance of existing equipment, for the supply of heat, light, power and sanitation;

"(b) For the necessary supplies and essential repairs (not extensions or replacements) to existing buildings and manufacturing plants.

"(c) For drugs, medicines and buildings; medical and surgical supplies;

"(d) For the operation of machine used for any purposes; shops and blacksmith shops;

"(e) For wire cloth for screening and hay."

"(f) Nails, screws, bolts and nuts

"(g) Ball ties, including cotton

AN EDUCATION AND MILITARY TRAINING AT ONE TIME.

The 16,000 boys who graduated from the high schools of the state last June, together with other young men of proper age and qualification to enter colleges this fall, have an opportunity to learn to be officers in the United States Army or Navy while pursuing their college course.

Beginning with the next college year all colleges having 100 or more students who are eligible for military training, will create a Students' Army Training Corps. Students who enter upon the training will be enlisted in the military service of the United States. They receive no pay, being classed on inactive service, but in a national emergency the President may at any time call them into service. A student must register under the selective service law after he has reached draft age, as provided by the existing law or amendment of it. Upon stating in his questionnaire that he is already in the military service, he will be automatically placed by his local board in Class V-D, and he will not be called by the board so long as he remains a member of the Students' Army Training Corps.

The purpose of the plan is to provide for the very important needs of the army for highly trained men as officers, engineers, doctors, chemists and administrators of every kind. The plan is an attempt to mobilize and develop the brain power of the young men of the country for these services which demand special training. Its object is to prevent the premature enlistment for active service of these men who could, by extending the period of their college training, multiply many times their value to the country.

The government has taken the ground that it is real economy to utilize the college and university plants throughout the United States to equip leaders for its army, and for this reason it was the War Department which proposed this plan to the colleges. Through the plan the very greatest opportunities are provided for young men to secure an education. They have the chance to invest at one time in the ordinary college education, which will be the greatest possible demand after the war is over, and at the same time invest in a military training which will fit them in a very short time for the duties of active warfare.

THE TENTH.

Pittsburg Gazette Times.

For almost two weeks the people of this section have been watching a typical but none the less dramatic and touching episode of the war unfold day by day. From the time the casualty lists first made known the presence of the Fighting Tenth on the Soissons-Rheims front, tolls of life heavy in proportion to the populations have been recorded against the honor rolls of several of Pittsburg's near and esteemed neighbors, until this week it became apparent to all that the famous regiment had taken its natural place, in the thickest of the fray, and had added another chapter to its blood-stirring record. Weak sentimentalism in contemplation of an event of this nature is entirely out of keeping with our people's strong position toward the war, but, on the other hand, he would be callous indeed who could remain unmoved by the records that correspondents of the Gazette Times have sent from the towns of the Beaver Valley, and from Fayette, Washington, Greene, Somerset and Westmoreland counties. The reunion of some members of the Tenth of '98 held this week in Connellsville, reminded the public as a whole of the tradition behind the men who went into the front line on that fateful day last month, a tradition that goes far to explain their mettle. The Tenth has always been a fighting regiment and its representatives of today did not forget it when their chance came.

From what General March said in Washington yesterday and last week, we know that the spirit of the entire Keystone Division is that of the Fighting Tenth. It is also heartening to know that the renumbering and redistribution of military units belonging originally to this state have not hidden their identity in any way. A year ago it was feared we should not be able to tell when Pittsburg and Western Pennsylvania organizations were in action; we know now that we shall be able to follow them through the war.

The Red Cross is proving to the soldiers' friends in Connellsville that it can bind broken hearts Over Here just as effectively as it can bind broken limbs Over There.

"French Blows Carry Bluffs on River Line," says a headline and, it may be added, with the same ease and dispatch with which German bluffs are being called.

No citizen of Connellsville has been a more diligent or loyal supporter of the Red Cross, or more active in securing the support of others, than City Clerk Bixler. That this organization has performed a great service for him in locating his missing son is a fitting and deserving compensation for his own unselfish service in its behalf.

There is no need for the Kaiser to place General von Beahm, "the retreat specialist," in chief command on the western front. Thanks to the aid being given by the Allies, the German troops are themselves doing fairly well in executing the movement to the rear.

Pennsylvanians do not need the testimony of General March, chief of staff, to convince them that our Guardsmen "fought valiantly," but it is flattering to have our own opinion of their behavior confirmed by so competent an authority.

Although the old "Fighting Tenth" has only 45 of its members in the service, every one knows, who knows anything of the spirit that possesses this historic command, that every living survivor would give up his choicest possession if he, too, were permitted to resume his place in the ranks.

Freak War Inventions

LONDON, Aug. 2.—If the dreams of numerous British amateur inventors who have been besieging the Ministry of Munitions could be realized, the war would have been over long since and little would be left of the German army. Recent proposals include the following:

Freeze the clouds and mount artillery thereon.

Train cormorants to fly to Essen to pick the mortar from Krupp's walls so that they will crumble.

Perch men on shells to steer them.

A suggestion often submitted is to attach a searchlight to an anti-aircraft gun, project the light on a Gotha and shoot along the beam. Unfortunately, shells will not follow a path of light.

Other schemes for dealing with hostile aircraft are to suspend heavy guns from captive balloons; to arm defense airplanes with scythes; to provide heat rays for setting Zeppelins on fire, and to cover the moon with a big black balloon. To prevent polished rails shining at night and acting as a guide to enemy aircraft, the last coach of the last train is to drop blacking on them.

A shell containing gravel is to lay a pathway over mud, and another, containing an irritant powder or a sticky substance, is to hamper machine guns.

The "relay shell" is a favorite proposal, the plan being for a shell at the height of its flight to expel smaller inner shells. As a shell does not point directly along its trajectory, it would be impossible to secure accuracy of aim for the second shell.

Among the more miscellaneous projects are:

To petrify German soldiers by squirting cement over them.

To throw snakes by pneumatic propulsion into the enemy trenches.

To penetrate and attack German itself via a "tube" built "all the way" from England.

It is said that about one suggestion in ten that reach the Ministry of Munitions is novel and possible.

The Air Ministry announces that its air inventions committee, formed about nine months ago, has examined more than 5,000 inventions and suggestions.

TOYS AND LIFE.

You can learn a lot from boys
By the way they use their toys;
Some are selfish in their care;
Never very glad to share
Playthings with another boy;
Seem to want to hoard their joy.
And they hide away the drum
For the days that never come;
Hide the train of cars and skates,
Keeping them from all their mates,
And run all their boyhood through
With their toys as good as new.

Others gladly give and lend,
Heedless that the tin may bend;
Caring not that drum heads break,
Minding not that playmates take
To themselves the joy that lies
In the little birthday prize.
And in homes that house such boys,
Always there are broken toys,
Symbolizing moments glad
That the youthful lives have had.
There, you'll never find a shelf
Dedicated unto self.

Toys are made for children's fun,
Very frail and quickly done;
And who keeps them long in view,
Bright of paint and good as new,
Robs himself and other boys
Of their swiftly passing joys,
And somehow today we're glad
That the tokens of our lad
And the trinkets that we keep
Are a broken, battered heap.

Life itself is but a toy
Filled with duty and with joy;
Not too closely should we guard
Our brief time from being scarred;
Never high on musty shelves
Should we hoard it for ourselves.
It is something we should share
In another's hour of care—
Something we should gladly give
That another here may live;
We should never live it through
Keeping it as good as new.

Price Advance

For over a year now we have succeeded in maintaining our old prices, principally by virtue of a big increase in sales which reduced our overhead cost.

For our fiscal year ending July 1, 1918, our sales amounted to over a million dollars—an increase of 68 per cent over the preceding year.

We had hoped to bridge the war period without a change in prices on

Vick's VapoRub

but we find that our economies do not keep pace with our rising costs. It is with sincere regret, therefore, that we are forced to announce an increase, effective August 1, which will make it necessary to retail VapoRub at

NEWS COMES FROM CAMP GRANT

John T. Fahey Writes Chatty Letter of Activities of the K. of C in Camp; Hopes Soon to Go Overseas; Scottdale Boy Takes a Bride.

Special to The Courier

SCOTTDALE, Aug. 16.—Eighty-five men in Class 1-A of the draft who are likely to be called for service in the National Army were drilled at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening and this was repeated last evening. Charles D. Flagle is the general chairman of this work and the military training is in charge of R. P. Ellis, a Spanish War veteran, and former burgess of Scottdale. He was assisted by J. R. Stauffer, a Scottdale boy, who has had several years' training at West Point, and William Mullin Miller and Joseph Knowles, who have graduated from the Reserve Officers Training Corps at the University of Pittsburg. All men are urged to prepare for military service so that in case they are sent into camp that they will be in better condition for the training there.

Leter From Camp Grant.

Wilfred McKeon has received a letter from John T. Fahey, secretary of the Knights of Columbus, Camp Grant, Ill., saying that he has charge of the social and publicity work at Camp Grant. He states that the boys are well taken care of spiritually and socially. He is getting a ladies' minstrel ready to be staged about August 29 and that one night it will be given in Rockford, Ill., for the benefit of the K. of C. war fund. Mr. Fahey has made application for overseas service. He tells of the marriage of a former Scottdale boy, John F. Kridle, and Miss Caroline Eberharter of Dawson, solemnized at the K. of C. chapel.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE SOUL OF BUDDHA"—In which Theda Bara, the celebrated screen star, appears as Bava, an East Indian girl, is being shown today. Her widowed mother, a devout worshipper of Buddha, fearful of her daughter's morals, decides to give Bava to the temple as a sacred dancer. She runs over to Ysora, the high priest. Attracted by the handsome priest, Bava willingly consecrates herself as a religious dancer. During a religious festival dance, Sir John Daro, a major in the English army, is attracted by the beauty of Bava. While dancing, Bava falls in front of him and he catches her. The priests, headed by Ysora, rush towards the Englishman and are about to kill him when Bava interferes. Ysora commands Bava to pray before Buddha the entire night for punishment. She leaves the temple at midnight and meets Sir John. Ysora follows the couple to the barracks. Sir John calls in the army chaplain who makes them man and wife. Ysora vows vengeance. A year later a child is born. Ysora kills the baby and, heartbroken, Bava leaves with her husband for Paris. When she again makes her appearance as a dancer, Ysora, disguised as Buddha, comes to life and kills her in front of the audience, carrying out his oath of vengeance. A selected comedy is included. Monday, Emily Stevens, the celebrated actress, will be featured in "A Man's World," a Metro feature of unusual excellence.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"LOVE'S CONQUEST"—Stars "the most beautiful woman in Europe, Mme. Lina Cavalieri." The story of "Love's Conquest" deals with an Athenian widowed duchess of the early sixteenth century, whose beauty and riches attract countless suitors for her hand. The Duchess Gismonda is devoted to her four-year-old son and spurns all offers of marriage. When Prince Zaccaria, after presenting her with a live lion, is refused, he causes one of his followers to throw the child into an enclosure where the lion is confined, in the belief that he may then win her hand. Gismonda makes a vow in the shadow of the cross to wed the man who rescues her son, but when Almeric, a common huntsman, saves the child at the peril of his life, she refuses to fulfill her vow.

CONSUMERS OF COAL MUST AID SPLENDID EFFORTS OF MINERS

Otherwise Increased Production Measures Will Be Ineffective.

CAN AVERT A SHORTAGE

Only by the Practice of the Most Rigid Economy, Says the Fuel Administration in a Warning to Public in General and Consumers in Particular.

The demand for fuel on the part of the war-making branches of the government and the war industries is growing by leaps and bounds, says the United States Fuel Administration in a warning issued to the public in general and coal consumers in particular. Every increase in war-making efficiency of the nation is forcing a corresponding increase in the fuel demand. Estimates of the coal consumption for the year, which were judged high in April, are now proving inadequate.

It becomes increasingly apparent that despite the phenomenal increase in the rate of production at the mines, despite the splendid effort of the mines and miners under pressure from the Fuel Administration, the strictest fuel economy must be enforced if the country is to escape a serious coal shortage next winter. Every means of coal conservation must be observed, and every wasteful and unnecessary use of coal must be eliminated.

Almost daily applications are coming to the United States Fuel Administration from war industries for allotments of coal in addition to those made at the beginning of the coal year. Some are from new plants authorized by the War Industries Board, not known to the Fuel Administration at the beginning of the year. The requirements for these plants are in addition to the original allotments. Other demands are from plants already on the preferred list of war industries, for increased allowances because of enlargements and extensions to original plants made since the Fuel Administration compiled its estimates of consumption.

The increased demand for coal for the Navy reached almost 100 per cent in July. Whereas three and a half million tons was allotted to the Navy in April, the requirements by the middle of July had reached a basis of 6,000,000 tons. By the end of the calendar year 1919 it is estimated that approximately 8,000,000 tons will be required to cover these demands.

With the launching of new ships, the requirements of the Shipping Board have likewise grown beyond all expectation. When the annual allotment was made, April 1, 10,000,000 tons was assigned for the purposes of the Shipping Board. The actual requirements as demonstrated by experience, and as a result of the phenomenal results being achieved by the Shipping Board, now place the figure at 13,000,000 tons.

So also coal for bunkering purposes, at first estimated at thirteen and a half million tons, has grown in demand until present calculations call for 21,000,000 tons.

New industries not in operation at the beginning of the coal year are now running full tilt or are about to start. From these come demands for coal of consequential proportions. A few are here enumerated, some of which are new plants, or additions to existing plants, made necessary by the enormously increased demands for war manufacture. To mention some of these new demands:

Youngstown Sheet & Tube company, additional requirements, 45,000 tons by-product coal per month.

Cambria Steel company, 27,000 additional tons by-product coal per month.

The Edgewood Arsenal, 30,000 tons steam coal per month.

The Perryville Powder plant, 15,000 tons steam coal per month.

Worth Steel company, 6,000 tons producer gas and steam coal per month.

These new requirements alone represent an annual consumption of nearly a million and a half tons.

Aside from the increased requirements here shown, originating from new or enlarged plants, many old plants, rated at the beginning of the coal year for marked increases of allowance over the consumption of 1917, are now demanding still more coal. Practically all the steel plants and furnaces are running on full time, 24 hours per day. There are no suspensions of operations save for repairs and overhauling of plants. In some instances the yearly coal requirements were underestimated. In many others enlarged production, under increased efficiency, has created a demand for additional coal. Invariably, increased steel production calls for increased coal production, demanding about five tons of coal for each ton of steel produced.

The source of supply for the particular new coal requirements cited is within a limited coal area. The extra allowances and demands there made call for coal from New River and Pocahontas low volatile fields of West Virginia, the low volatile fields of Pennsylvania, and Kentucky. These fields produce the grades of coal especially needed for the war work. And it is from these same fields—with the exception of Kentucky—that the enormous calls of New England and the Atlantic states for coal for war use must be answered.

The fields named are working at top-notch speed when accorded full car supply. But, unfortunately, they are the fields where transportation service is most difficult to secure. Not only does the eastern manufacturing section rely entirely upon the fields named for their tremendous coal supply, but by-product plants everywhere and gas plants, generally, derive their coal supply from this limited territory. The mines within this territory were, on July 27, more than 14,000,000 tons short of their scheduled output, estimated by the Fuel Administration as necessary to meet its fuel needs of the country.

The United States Fuel Administration faces the difficulty of meeting greatly increased demands for coal not from the nation's big coal pile, but from a much smaller pile, representing the output within a small area. The war necessities must be cared for by coal from these fields, and non-war industries will be given coal from them only after the war plants designated by the War Industries Board for preference are supplied.

BASEBALL PLAYERS MAY SPORT PAPER UNIFORMS

Baseball players may be wearing paper suits soon. Uncle Sam uses a lot of flannel to clothe his fighting men, and there may not be enough left to supply baseball uniforms. If the bold athletes have to wear paper suits they will be mighty chary about sliding to bases, for if the suit started to tear the blushing player would find himself adorned in only his native modesty.

Some of the players would be wrapped in coarse brown paper if the fans have their way.

JONES NEVER SIGNED CONTRACT WITH BALL

Fielder Jones, who recently quit his job as manager of the St. Louis American league team, was one of the highest-priced managers in base ball; in fact, ranked second, perhaps, to John McGraw of the Giants. When he came to St. Louis to manage the Federal league club it was reported his salary was $15,000 per year. He continued to draw this sum until the start of the current campaign, when he voluntarily accepted a reduction because of the war conditions confronting baseball.

How much his salary was reduced is not known, but it is stated on reliable authority that it was cut to $12,000. Jones never signed a contract during the four years or more he worked with Phil Ball. They worked together under a "gentlemen's agreement."

Compton Again a Colonel.

ATTENDING TO CHICKENS AND GARDEN

"My neighbors are surprised to see me looking so well, for they thought I would not live to see summer. I had such pain around my heart as to cause me to faint. I knew it came from bloating and pressure of gas in my stomach. A friend in St. Louis told me to use Mary's Wonderful Remedy and I now feel better than in all my life. I am doing my own work, attending to my chickens and my garden and have cleaned house." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

CONNIE IS SWEET ON IRISH

Manager of Athletics Has Array of Talent Possessing Reminders of "Ould Sod."

Connie Mack has a soft spot in his heart for ball players with Irish names. He won the championship with Eddie Collins, Jack Barry, Stuff McInnes and other sons of Erin. These stars have gone, but Connie has another array of talent that possesses good old-fashioned reminders of the "ould sod."

There is Walker, Burns, Shannon, Dugan, McAvoy, Geary, Shea and Holmes, and others. When you remember Connie Mack's real name is Cornelius McGillicuddy, you won't be surprised at his fondness for the Irish.

SILVER DOLLAR IS BIG ON A TRAINING TRIP

The White Sox were playing a long, extra-inning game at Chicago. The sun was setting—one of those great, round red suns. It gleamed through the lattice-work of the upper stands at Comiskey park and shone directly into Right Fielder Shauno Collins' face. As the latter came in for the last half of the thirteenth inning he was stopped by a fellow player, who asked:

"What does that sun remind you of, Shauno?"

Collins paused for a moment. Then he said: "It reminds me of a silver dollar on a training trip; just about the same size."

No Soft Job for Fohl.

It's a job that requires overalls and hard work that Lee Fohl, manager of the Cleveland Americans, will assume when the baseball season is ended in October. "No soft job for me during the winter months," Fohl said. "I am well over the draft age, but I am husky enough to do my share of hard work, especially as the government needs able-bodied men in the shops."

Carolyn of the Corners

"P'raps that's so," he agreed, and he held in the nervous Cherry for a moment till the change was accomplished.

The roaring of the fire grew louder and louder in their ears.

Suddenly Joseph Stagg dragged Cherry's head around. The horse snorted and hesitated, for the smoke was blinding him.

"Oh, Uncle Jo! Oh, Miss Amanda," Cried Carolyn May.

"Oh, Joe, can we reach it?" whispered Amanda.

"We've got to!" he returned grimly. "It's three miles, if it's an inch, but Cherry has got to make it."

They were relieved after a minute or two in this new road. The smoke had not so completely filled it. But it was a rougher way, and the buckboard bounced until Carolyn May cried out in fear.

They drove over a little hillock that raised them higher than the tote road had done. Amanda clutched Mr. Stagg's arm again and uttered a half-stifled "Oh!"

He shot a glance to the left. A mass of flame broke out in the wood not far off this trail—the top of a great tree was on fire.

"The wind is carrying brands this way," muttered the man. "A dozen new fires will be started. Well, gid-up, Cherry!" and he seized the whip again.

The horse was well spent now, but he was plucky. He tried to increase his stride. A hot breath of wind came rushing through the forest, bending the branches and shaking the leafy foliage. The wind seemed fairly to scorch the fugitives.

The roaring of the fire increased. Through the more open woods which bordered this path they saw the smoke advancing in a thicker wall—and one as high as the tree tops.

"You've got to make it, old boy," muttered Joseph Stagg, and he lashed the horse again.

The spirited Cherry leaned forward, both the woman and the child screaming.

"Is it far? Is it far?" gasped Amanda in his ear.

"Too far for comfort. But keep your heart up."

As the man spoke, a blazing brand swung through the air and came down, right on Amanda's shoulders. Carolyn May shrieked. Joseph Stagg brushed off the burning stick.

Cherry mounted another small ridge and then they clattered down into a little hollow where there was a slough beside the road. The water was green and stagnant, but it was water.

The man pulled in the hard-pressed horse and leaped down, passing the reins to Amanda. He whipped off his coat and dipped it in the mudhole. He drew it out dripping with water and slime.

"Look out, here! Have to shut your eyes!" he warned his two companions on the seat of the buckboard, and threw the saturated coat over Miss Amanda's head. The dripping garment sheltered Carolyn May as well.

"Now, good horse!" he yelled to Cherry, leaping back to the seat. "Gid-ap!"

The horse started up the slope. Another swirling brand came down upon them. Joseph Stagg fought it off with his bare hand. His shirt sleeve caught fire and he was painfully burned on the forearm before he could smother the blaze.

Another flaming brand fell, landing on Cherry's back. The horse squealed and leaped forward at a pace which Mr. Stagg could not control. Maddened by the burn, Cherry had taken the bit in his teeth and was running away.

The man threw down the reins. He could do nothing toward retarding the frightened horse's pace. Indeed, he did not want to stop him.

The wet steaming coat saved the woman and the child from injury.

Joseph Stagg had lost all count of time. The forest road might still extend ahead of them for a mile, for all he knew.

But suddenly they broke cover, Cherry still galloping wildly, and plunged down an open ravine to the edge of a lake of sparkling water.

"Bless me! The lake! The lake!" hoarsely shouted the man.

The walls of the ravine sheltered them from smoke and fire for a moment, but the brands still fell. Cherry had halted on the edge of the lake, but Joseph Stagg urged him on into the water, flank deep. The shore was narrow and afforded little space for refuge. He lifted Amanda and the child bodily from the seat and dropped them into the water.

"We're safe now," he said hoarsely, jumping in himself, and holding Carolyn May and Amanda. "We've got water enough here, thanks be! Hang on to me, Mandy. I'm not going to let you get away—no more, never!"

And by the way in which the woman clung to his arm it was evident that she did not propose to lose him.

"My, Uncle Joe! you are just the bravest man!" declared Carolyn May, finding her voice. "Isn't he, Miss Mandy? And, see, his arm is all burned. Dear me, we must get home to Aunty Rose and let her do it up for him."

CHAPTER XVII.

"Two's Company."

Toward the east the forest tract was completely burned to the banks of Codler's creek. As the wind which had sprung up had driven the fire westward, there was little danger of the flames pressing nearer than the creek to Sunrise Cove and The Corners.

Joseph Stagg led the horse out of the water and advised Miss Amanda and Carolyn May to get into the seat of the buckboard again. Then he set forth, leading the horse along the narrow beach, while Prince followed wearily in the rear.

It was a rough route they followed, but the blackened forest was still too hot for them to pass through, had they been able to find a path. This was a lonely strip of shore and they saw no living soul but themselves.

It was a long tramp, and the horse, the dog, and the man were alike wearied. Carolyn May went fast asleep with her head pillowed in Miss Amanda's lap.

The latter and Joseph Stagg talked much. Indeed, there was much for them to say after all these years of silence.

The woman, worn and scorched of face, looked down on the smutted and sweating man with an expression in her eyes that warmed him to the marrow. She was proud of him. And the gaze of love and longing that the hardware merchant turned upon Amanda Parlow would have amazed those people that believed he had consideration and thought only for business.

In these few hours of alarm and close intimacy the man and the woman had leaped all the barriers time and pride had set up. Nothing further could keep Joseph Stagg and Amanda Parlow apart. And yet they never for one instant discussed the original cause of their estrangement. That was a dead issue.

The refugees reached The Corners about nine o'clock. Jedidiah Parlow had hobbled up to the store and was just then organizing a party of searchers to go to the rescue of the hardware dealer and those of whom he had set forth in search.

The village turned out en masse to welcome the trio who had so miraculously escaped the fire. Aunty Rose's relief knew no bounds. Mr. Parlow was undeniably glad to see his daughter safe; otherwise, he would never have overlooked the pitiable state his horse was in. Poor Cherry would never be the same unblemished animal again.

"Well, I vum!" he said to Joseph Stagg, "you done it! Better'n I could, too, I reckon. I'll take the hoss home. You comin' with me, Mandy?" Then he saw the burns on the younger man's shoulders and arms. "The good land of Jehoshaphat! here's work for you to do, Mandy. If you air any sort of a nurse, I reckon you got your hands full right here with Joe Stagg," he added, with some pride in his daughter's ability. "Phew! them's bad-lookin' burns!"

"They are indeed," agreed Aunty Rose.

It was a fact that Mr. Stagg was in a bad state. Carolyn May had suggested that Aunty Rose would dress his burns, but Miss Amanda would allow nobody to do that but herself.

When the curious and sympathetic neighbors had gone and Miss Amanda was still busy making Joseph Stagg comfortable in the sitting room, Aunty Rose came out into the kitchen, where she had already bathed and helped Carolyn May to undress, and where the little girl was now sleepily eating her supper of bread and milk.

"Well, wonders don't ever cease, I guess," she said, more to herself than to her little confidant. "Who'd have thought it!"

"Who'd have thought what, Aunty Rose?" inquired Carolyn May.

"Your uncle and Mandy Parlow have made it up," breathed the woman, evidently much impressed by the wonder of it.

"Yes, indeed!" cried the child. "Isn't it nice? They aren't mad at each other any more."

"No, I should say they're not," Aunty Rose observed with grimness. "Far from it. It's a fact! I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. Holding hands in there like a pair of— Well, do you know what it means, Carolyn May?"

"That they love each other," the child said boldly. "And I'm so glad for them!"

"So am I," declared the woman, still in a whisper. "But it means changes here. Things won't be the same for long. I know Joseph Stagg for what he is."

"What is he, Aunty Rose?" asked Carolyn May in some trepidation, for the housekeeper seemed to be much moved.

BRIGHTENS HOME

Book of a Thousand Songs Just Right for Family Gathering.

It is Sunday evening. The family is all gathered in the cozy living room, where the shades are drawn and the lamps lighted. At the piano is a girl whose fingers are drawn listlessly over the keys as if searching for a song to harmonize with the surroundings.

"Daughter, play some old hymns, can't you?" he asks. She drifts from the musical reverie into "Abide With Me." She plays "Softly Now the Light of Day," and follows this with "Jerusalem the Golden."

Ere long the family is singing. They join in "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," their voices blend in "My Faith Looks Up to Thee;" some one suggests "Sun of My Soul," and they sing it.

They will find all these old favorite hymns, in addition to nearly 100 others, in The Book of a Thousand Songs, which this paper is distributing. A coupon printed in another column of this paper, explains how to obtain it at a nominal price.

Saved Ship From Destruction.

Capturing a runaway bomb on the deck of a ship during a terrific gale, a United States navy man heroically held on to several hundred pounds of high explosive until it was got to safety. This man of iron nerve is John Mackenzie of the naval reserve, who is serving as a chief boatswain's mate on the U. S. S. Benitts, a converted yacht now on patrol service in European waters. For this extraordinary heroism Mackenzie has been awarded a medal of honor and given a gratuity of $100. In the midst of a storm a depth charge, such as have proved so disastrous to German submarines, broke loose and went rolling about the decks. Realizing the danger, Mackenzie shouted out, "I'll get her!" and flung himself upon the charging cylinder. Three times he was thrown from the bomb. The fourth time he got it and, heaving the charge upright, sat on it and held it down. Here he remained until lines were placed around the bomb. Had the charge exploded it would have blown the ship to pieces. Mackenzie is a native of Massachusetts and his mother, Mrs. Mackenzie, resides at South Hadley Falls, Mass. After serving four years in the regular navy he returned to service in the fleet naval reserve.

Burglary Among Nonessentials.

Among the nonessential industries which are almost in a state of collapse is the ancient and sinister one of burglary. According to data furnished by a burglary insurance company there has been a decided and favorable change in the attitude of chronic recalcitrants since the executive proclamation of a few weeks ago, directing all ablebodied men between eighteen and fifty years old to turn their hands to industrial pursuits. The draft, high wages and federal and state surveillance promises to reduce crime almost to the vanishing point. Many sociologists and criminologists of the modern school will point to this as proof of their theories that poverty is the principal cause of crime. It will no doubt be a potential argument in favor of a revision of criminal laws after the war.

Had Her Hands Full.

An amateur mission worker flattered into one of the West side offices of the Associated Charities.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "I have the saddest case for you. Really, it is quite pathetic. A woman, who has been deserted by her husband, has five little children to support. She is too frail to work, and I'm sure there isn't enough in the house for their next meal."

"But what is to prevent you from taking charge of this case yourself?" asked the official.

"Oh," said the visitor, drawing herself up haughtily, "I couldn't think of it, you know. Why, I'm doing the Lord's work!"—Chicago American.

IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

Here's Proof That Vinol Enriches the Blood.

Bradford, Pa.—"I have used Vinol for impoverished blood. I was broken out with a rash and rundown so it was hard for me to keep about my work. After trying Beef Iron and Wine and other medicines without benefit Vinol enriched my blood and improved my condition very rapidly." —Rose Lasky.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success in such cases to beef, and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body building and strength creating tonics.

Woman's Morning Sickness—

POOR WOMAN, she is called upon to suffer and carry MORE than her share of human ills, but the one that seems to be most trying and unfair of all is the sickness that comes to her at the time of life when she should be at her best—when every ounce of her strength should be for the carrying out of that act of Nature that makes her bring a new life into the world.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER—awfully—terribly during this time with a stomach sickness. It is the kind that never can be told in words—the morning sickness of a woman.

Before Baby Comes—

It is one of the most trying tests of human endurance, and all the more so because it is so hard to control.

Few remedies can be depended upon to give more or less temporary relief. So many favorable reports have come to us from those who have used EATONIC during this time that it is with the greatest satisfaction we say to ALL SUFFERERS from this peculiar woman's sickness of the stomach, "DO TRY EATONIC—give it a fair trial, and GET THE HELP we so confidently feel sure you will get."

The results have been so uniformly good—wonderful in many cases—that we say to you, and gladly do we say it, that any poor woman sufferer who obtains a package of EATONIC from any druggist in this city or drug stores anywhere and uses it according to the simple directions if it fails to do the good and give the help that it should—all she has to do is to return it to the druggist whom you know and can trust and the money will be cheerfully refunded. Remember it only costs a penny or two a day to use EATONIC.

SO WE SAY—

Do not ever suffer again

RAISING MORE WHEAT IS URGED ON FARMERS OF THE COUNTY AS WAR MEASURE

The Fayette County Farm Bureau has sent the following to members, it applying to all farmers of the county:

"In accordance with the food production program outlined by the government to meet the food requirements for next year, we are asked to increase the wheat acreage in Pennsylvania at least three per cent. According to this program Fayette county is asked to do her part by increasing wheat acreage 700 acres.

"For Fayette county to meet this quota of 700 acres practically every farmer and land owner in the county must 'lend a hand.' Fayette county has many acres of land that is now in sod which can profitably be sown to wheat with the same being true of practically every field in the valley section on which corn will be cut this fall.

"In planning for this increased acreage we should consider seriously the following factors—seed bed, clean seed, fertilization.

"The seed bed should be well settled and firm showing that early plowing is desirable. In fact a well settled seed bed is so important that if it is not possible to get the land in proper condition in time for seeding to wheat, rye should be sown.

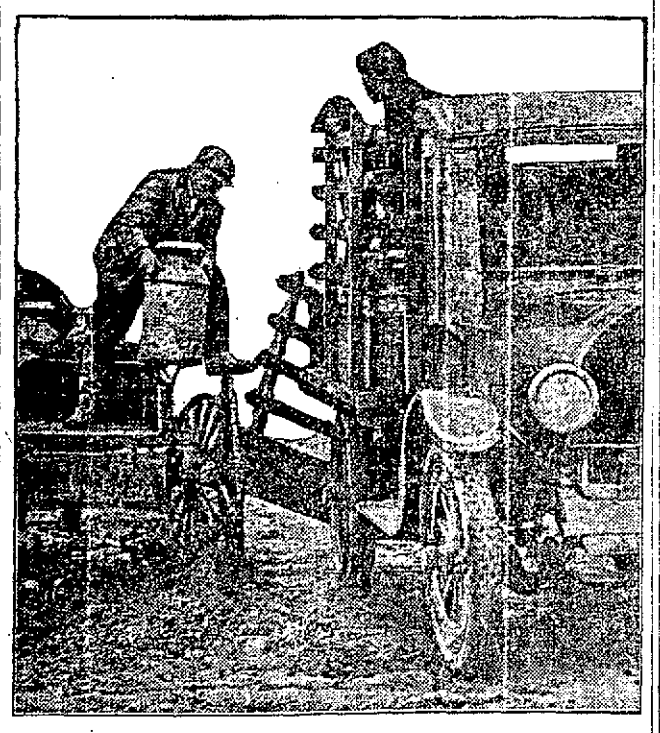
"Seed from high producing varieties, home grown, free from rye, and weeds having been run through a fanning mill should be sown. (The fanning mill assists materially in keeping down disease).

"Wheat responds well to acid phosphate and it should be used on every acre sown in the county. On land fair in fertility 250 or more pounds of acid phosphate will give big returns. On land lower in fertility a still heavier application is recommended. Manure—nothing beats it, but when it is used acid phosphate should also be applied. Six tons of manure and 200 pounds acid phosphate per acre is recommended. Where manure is available best results will be obtained when applied on top of plowed ground and worked into the soil.

"Note—On fields low in fertility, 100 pounds of lime per acre will help insure a stand of grass for next year.

"Will you meet your part of this increase."

RURAL EXPRESS SERVICE SOLVES FOOD TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM IN CAPITAL



To help carry foodstuffs to American cities the highway transport committee of the council of national defense has evolved a nation-wide plan for rural express service to the centers of population from nearby productive regions.

A special study has been made of food delivery systems into Washington, which shows that in the face of a growing increase in population, which already has added 100,000 new residents to the District of Columbia's total, practically no new means has been created to feed this added population.

The committee is now experimenting on the rural express service. Not only do the trucks haul food into Washington, but they do an extensive business in carrying goods from Washington merchants to the farmers.
